WOMEN WORKERS' BAZAAR
OPENED BY MR. HOOPER
"ELECTION BEFORE END OF YEAR"

Yesterday afternoon the Acting President, who was assisted by Mrs. Holman, opened a bazaar in the Grand Theatre. The present included Messrs. Hollis, Black, Mearns, Cook and McLaughlin. The exhibition had been arranged by the Women's organizing committee.

Mrs. Holman paid a tribute to the work performed by women in the Labor movement. Labour's success was in a large measure due to the untiring study of the women workers. Labour had made its mark in the State House, a big majority in the Federal House of Representatives and in the Labour senators elected for New Year's day.

At the first time in the history of the world, women were asked to vote. It was to say, "I turn to and see what we all can do for the good of our country." It was only urge you to do this. I am sure that the bazaar is a success. Within a few weeks we are going to have a year-end bazaar. A success. Without a few weeks we are going to have a year-end bazaar. A success. Without a few weeks we are going to have a year-end bazaar. A success.

It is an appeal to the people which has been pending for some time, will take place and will be a success. It is an appeal to the people which has been pending for some time, will take place and will be a success.

It is not the slightest reason for doubting that before the end of the year we will have the election. Funds are needed for the movement, and this bazaar is one of the best ways of raising these funds.

At the instance of Mrs. Dickie, a vote of thanks was accorded the Acting President and the ladies who assisted her.

The Dwyer is president of the organizing committee; Mrs. Munnell vice-president; and Mrs. Eery and Mr. Al Con joint secretaries.

Manufacturers and other business people have contributed articles valued at $250,000, and the league men have subscribed towards the bazaar.

STATE METAL QUARRY.

MINISTER'S ANTICIPATIONS.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) has been credited with the determination to effect a saving of £100,000 a year at the state quarry at Klarna recently purchased by the Klarna Holed Metal Company. The price to be paid for the quarry was £100,000. The quarry included is £14,000. Mr. Griffith said previously that no such stipulation suggestion was ever made to the Klarna Holed Metal Company by the Minister, "the net profits of the Klarna Company, after allowing for all expenses and depreciation, will be £100,000 a year for the next year." He pointed out that the saving of £12,000 per annum to the department, when he mentioned when making known the saving chase, will only be possible when the quarrying company developed as to permit of the department securing an output up to 60,000 tons per annum. He stated that in the next 10 years this will be possible, and the following year, with the extension of operations, the output will be 100,000 tons. He stated that he be at least correspondingly larger on the whole of the requirements of the department.

The department will be able to obtain and distribute the material in a more efficient system than the company was able to, first because the output will be larger, and second because the material will be distributed to the quarries will be connected both with the railway and with the jetty by rail.

Another large economy will be made in the distribution, which, in place of being made in the ordinary way by rail, will be made by means of a system of pneumatic tubes, driven by compressed air, and loaded by mechanical means. Mr. Griffiths estimates that the cost of the material estimated by his officers is really a minimum, and he explains that with improved appliances and more efficient management the cost will be considerably greater. The total cost, therefore, for next year will be about £200,000, and about £100,000 more for the following year, he stated above.

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday Mr. Griffiths was asked for some particulars as to the subject. He was informed that the area is 18 acres freehold, 10 acres leasehold, and 10 acres Crown land. The Land Development Trust, the Lands Department, and the Kilauea Municipal Council, comprise the three parties who are interested in the portion of the quarry area is still available for working at the present and deeper levels. The area is not yet surveyed, and the title to the property had some time since been offered to the City Council and refused.

STRIKERS ARRESTED.
POLICE CHARGE THE MOB.

LITHGOW, Wednesday.
Lithgow is in a state of turmoil. Anything might happen. The mob is in an ugly mood once more. The police and strikers have come

The outstanding sentiment expressed by both sides is "No Surrender." Mr. Hoskins is determined to make no further overtures to the strikers. They, on their part, swear that they will never work while the non-unionists are employed at the mine. Obviously, both sides have reached a stalemate. Each side is wondering whether it is to be a fight or a long, slow endgame.

Early this morning the works presented a scene of indescribable confusion. Just at the entrance stood a group of strikers, sulking and watching the police patrols. The position had been recaptured. The lawful owners were once more in possession of the hard-fought field, but they were in sore straits when relief party arrived. Every window in the temporary fort was smashed, and the doors threatened each moment to follow suit. The ground was littered with metal and ironwork and broken bottles. The men's quarters were looked as if it had suffered a bombardment. Just behind the end room were the queer, slight imaginable. About a dozen naked or half-naked men were engaged in salvage operations, fishing and diving in the huge tank for their belongings. Such a fishing party was never contemplated by the wildest disciples of Isak Walton. No tropic perleur ever imagined such diving. The anglers, with long rakes and spiked rods, were hooking bedding, clothing, and all sorts of impediments from time and again into the icy waters and brought up boots, and concertinas, and had a heap of trinkets and belongings. This morning the ice was so thick that the men had to break their way through it to get to the tank to dry. The blankets and bedding were thrown on the dumps to dry in the sun. It was all that was left of the loyalists' war robes and furniture.

WORST EVER KNOWN IN LITHGOW.
"I have been a resident of Lithgow for quarter of a century," said an old town such a riot as that which disgraced the town last night. It was simply mob rule, with the police absolutely powerless. To make things worse, the scene of tumult was enacted in absolute darkness, and it was miraculous that no one was killed."

Several men to-day in the works showed traces of the ordeal through which they had passed. Not one of the police escaped injury. Sergeant Burns suffered a nasty gash on the head from a flying missile. A constable had his back laid open. All the police suffered to a greater or less degree.

DUTCH COURAGE.

Many people in Lithgow are of the opinion that the riot last night would not have occurred only for the steady flow of liquor during the day, which infused too much "Dutch courage" into the strikers. On this point Mr. Hoskins said, "In my mind, one of the causes of the men losing their self-control was that the strikers had received their fortnight's strike pay, and, in addition, I am informed that there was an abundant supply of free beer."

ATTACK ON LOYALISTS.

MELEE ON THE BRIDGE.
SEVERAL STRIKERS ARRESTED.

Several hostile demonstrations were made to-day against the labourers, who are at work on their work. They were escorted through the streets by squads of police, a followed by jeering and hooting crowds, who hurled every epithet, parliamentary or otherwise that was calculated to stir the passions.

At 4 o'clock eight men started out from the main street to go to the mine, escorted by a dozen constables. Hoots and groans rent the air, and the jeering crowd, several hundreds strong, followed in their wake. But the cordon of police instilled some hesitation into the most turbulent strikers, and the free-labourers passed in unmolested.

unsorted and unannounced, marched down the main street. Soon the attention of the crowd was drawn to it, and again the hostile demonstration was made. At their head we now noticed Sergeant Burns in plain-clothes with his head bandaged. A wall of fury greeted the little band, but without faltering they marched through the crowd of angry face-distorted strikers. One man threw rotten vegetable, which splashed amongst the crowd, but these six also reached safely to the borders of what was to the strikers forbidden territory.

nightfall. So far Inspector Goulder and his men had with admirable tact preserved semblance of peace, but balked so often at their prey the mob waxed wrath. The citation came as a number of men came off this. The usual demonstration was accorded the and in the midst of a howling mob escort a escorted marched towards the township. T strikers were ministered in full force on t bridge, and just as the little band approach the policeman towered above the crowd would be swallowed up by the multitude, b the big policeman towered above the crowd and began to swing their batons with a vengeance. The surging crowd gave way. The free-labourers made a dash for home scurrying like startled hares along the

In the midst of the turmoil Mr. Dooley, M.L.A., mounted the parapet, and called to the strikers to refrain from violence. Soon the mob settled down to quietude, though the member for Hartley was pertinently asked why a Labour Premier had sent the police against the unionists.

A NEW IRONMASTER.

MR. DOOLEY SPEAKS.

FIGHT TO A FINISH.

When the police had drawn off with the prisoners, and the free-labourers had safely reached cover, Mr. Dooley addressed the crowd gathered in the main thoroughfare. He urged them to restrain themselves, and disperse quietly. He said that a public meeting would be held at the same place on the following Monday.

and some important addresses would be delivered on the best course of action to pursue. "I believe," said Mr. Dooley, "that in the near future there would be another Ironmaster here, the new quietly home to-night and to-morrow I will put some very important resolutions before you, with a view to finding a way out of this difficulty. I am absolutely certain that we can expect no more until Mr. Hoskins respects the Labour Industrial organisations. There are occasions when people try to force us into rioting. They are an object in view, but you must not let them

This fight to a finish. (Applause.)
Cheers were then given for unionism a

Then the crowd dispersed and went home

In the rioting to-night stones were thrown by the strikers, and many women participated and used the vilest language. One constable was struck on the jaw with a missile, and he had to receive medical attention.

NATIONALIZATION.
A number of residents of the town

"During the whole time it looked as if the works were in a state of chaos. The furnace was out, the engines were stopped, water flooded the premises. The strikers destroyed everything; they could lay their hands on anything. They partially destroyed a small locomotive. They took all the bedding and clothes of my man, and threw them into the pond. They

MERE HORSEPLAY.
REPORTS TO THE GOVERNMENT.

The Acting Chief Secretary, Mr. Flowers, in whose department is the administration of the police, believes the riot to have simply arisen out of some horseplay by a number of roughs. His reports from the sergeant on Tuesday were to the effect that no trouble of any kind was anticipated, and that the police who were
